ODE.

By the Same.

The following Ode is founded on a tradition current in Wales, that Edward the First, when he compleated the conquest of that country, ordered all the Bards, that fell into his hands, to be put to death.

I. 1.

Ruin seize thee, ruthless King!
Confusion on thy banners wait,
Tho' fann'd by Conquest's crimson wing
They mock the air with idle state.
Helm, nor Hauberks twisted mail,
Nor even thy virtues, Tyrant, shall avail
To save thy secret soul from nightly fears,
From Cambria's curse, from Cambria's tears!
Such were the founds, that o'er the crested pride
Of the first Edward scatter'd wild dismay,
As down the steep of Snowdon's shaggy side
He wound with toilsome march his long array.
Stout Glosler flood aghaft in speechless trance:
To arms! cried Mortimer, and couch'd his quiv'ring lance.

I. 2.
On a rock, whose haughty brow
Frowns o'er old Conway's foaming flood,
Robed in the sable garb of woe,
With haggard eyes the Poet flood;
(Loose his beard, and hoary hair
Stream'd, like a meteor, to the troubled air)
And with a Master's hand, and Prophet's fire,
Struck the deep forrows of his lyre.

Hark, how each giant-oak, and defant cave,
Sighs to the torrent's aweful voice beneath!
O'er thee, oh King! their hundred arms they wave,
Revenge on thee in hoarser murmurs breathe;
Vocal no more, since Cambria's fatal day,
To high-born Hoel's harp, or soft Llewellyn's lay.

Cold is Cadwallo's tongue,
That hush'd the stormy main:
Brave Urien sleeps upon his craggy bed:
Mountains, ye mourn in vain
Modred, whose magic song
Made huge Plinlimmon bow his cloud-top'd head.
On dreary Arvon's shore they lie,
Smear'd with gore, and ghastly pale:
Far, far aloof th' affrighted ravens sail;
The famish'd Eagle screams, and passes by.
Dear lost companions of my tuneful art,
Dear, as the light, that visits these sad eyes,
Dear, as the ruddy drops that warm my heart,
Ye died amidst your dying country's cries—
No more I weep. They do not sleep.
On yonder cliffs, a grievely band,
I see them fit, they linger yet,
Avengers of their native land:
With me in dreadful harmony they join,
And weave with bloody hands the tissie of thy line.

II. 1.

"Weave the warp, and weave the woof,
The winding-sheet of Edward's race,
Give ample room, and verge enough
The characters of hell to trace.
Mark the year, and mark the night,
When Severn shall re-echo with affright
The shrieks of death, thro' Berkley's roofs that ring,
Shrieks of an agonizing King!
She-Wolf of France, with unrelenting fangs,
That tear'd the bowels of thy mangled Mate,
From thee be born, who o'er thy country hangs
The scourge of Heav'n. What Terrors round him wait!
Amazement in his van, with Flight combin'd,
And Sorrow's faded form, and Solitude behind.

II. 2.

"Mighty Victor, mighty Lord,
Low on his funeral couch he lies!
No pitying heart, no eye afford
A tear to grace his obsequies.
"Is the fable Warriour fled?
Thy son is gone. He rests among the Dead.
The Swarm, that in thy noon-tide beam were born,
Gone to salute the rising Morn.
Fair laughs the Morn, and soft the Zephyr blows,
While proudly riding o'er the azure realm
In gallant trim the gilded Vessel goes;
Youth on the prow, and Pleasure at the helm;
Regardless of the sweeping Whirlwind's sway,
That, hush'd in grim repose, expects his evening prey.

II. 3.

"* Fill high the sparkling bowl,
The rich repast prepare,
Rest of a crown, he yet may share the feast:
Close by the regal chair
Fell Thirst and Famine scowl
A baleful smile upon their baffled Guest.
Heard ye the din of battle bray,
Lance to lance, and horse to horse?
Long Years of havoc urge their declining course,
And thro' the kindred squadrons mow their way.
Ye Towers of Julius, London's lasting shame,
With many a soul and midnight murther fed,
Revere his Consort's faith, his Father's fame,
And spare the meek Usurper's holy head.

* Richard the Second, (as we are told by Archbishop Scroop, Thomas of Walsingham, and all the older Writers,) was starved to death. The story of his assassination by Sir Piers of Exon, is of much later date.

" Above,
"Above, below, the rose of snow,
"Twined with her blushing foe, we spread:
"The bristled Boar in infant-gore
"Wallow beneath the thorny shade.
"Now Brothers, bending o'er th' accursed loom,
"Stamp we our vengeance deep, and ratify his doom.

III. 1.
"Edward, lo! to sudden fate
"(Weave we the woof. The thread is spun)
"* Half of thy heart we consecrate,
"(The web is wove. The work is done.)"
"Stay, oh stay! nor thus forlorn
"Leave me unblessed, unpitied, here to mourn:
"In yon bright track, that fires the western skies,
"They melt, they vanish from my eyes.
"But oh! what solemn scenes on Snowdon's height
"Defending slow their glitt'ring skirts unroll?
"Visions of glory, spare my aching sight,
"Ye unborn Ages, crowd not on my soul!
"No more our long-lost Arthur we bewail,
"All-hail ! ye genuine Kings, Britannia's Issue, hail!

III. 2.
"Girt with many a Baron bold,
"Sublime their stary fronts they rear;
"And gorgeous Dames, and Statesmen old
"In bearded majesty, appear.

* Eleanor of Castile, died a few years after the conquest of Wales. The heroic proof she gave of her affection for her Lord is well known. The monuments of his regret, and sorrow for the loss of her, are still to be seen in several parts of England.  † Accession of the line of Tudor.
In the midst a Form divine!
Her eye proclaims her of the Briton-Line;
Her lyon-port, her awe-commanding face,
Attempt'd sweet to virgin-grace.
What strings symphonious tremble in the air,
What strains of vocal transport round her play!
Hear from the grave, great Taliesin*, hear;
They breathe a soul to animate thy clay.
Bright rapture calls, and soaring, as she sings,
Wave in the eye of Heav'n her many-colour'd wings.

III. 3.

The verse adorn again
Fierce War, and faithful Love,
And Truth severe, by fairy Fiction drest.
In buskin'd measures move
Pale Grief, and pleasing Pain,
With Horrour, Tyrant of the throbbing breast.
A Voice, as of the Cherub-Choir,
Gales from blooming Eden bear;
And distant warblings lessen on my ear,
That lost in long futurity expire.
Fond impious Man, think'st thou, yon sanguine cloud,
Rais'd by thy breath, has quench'd the Orb of day?
To-morrow he repairs the golden flood,
And warms the nations with redoubled ray.

* Taliesin, Chief of the Bards, flourisht in the VIth Century. His works are still preserved, and his memory held in high veneration among his Countrymen.

Enough
Enough for me: With joy I see
The different doom our Fates assign.
Be thine Despair, and scepter’d Care,
To triumph, and to die, are mine.

He spoke, and headlong from the mountain’s height
Deep in the roaring tide he plung’d to endless night.
