

ON THE VIOLENT DEBATES

IN THE

HOUSE OF PEERS,

UPON THE BILL FOR SUSPENDING THE HABEAS CORPUS, &c.

MY noble Lords, your altercation
Can never tend to serve the nation,
You can't but know its laws ;
Why then, right noble Peers, this pother,
As if each culprit were your brother,
That thus you plead their cause ?

Prythee, my Lords, be quiet then,
Strive to acquit yourselves like men,
Who hold a sacred trust ;
Your Church, your King, your Country calls
For unity within your walls,
For measures firm and just.
