A diff'rent Cauſe, ſays Parſon SLY,
The ſame Effect may give:
Poor LUBIN fears, that He ſhall Die;
His Wife, that He may Live.

Another REASONABLE AFFLICTION.

FROM her own Native FRANCE as old ALISON paſt,
She reproach'd Engliſh NELL with Neglect or with Malice,
That the Slattern had left, in the Hurry and Haſt,
Her Lady's Complexion, and Eye-brows at CALAIS.

ANOTHER.

HER Eye-brow-Box one Morning loſt,
(The beſt of Folks are oft'neſt croſt)
Sad HELEN thus to JENNY ſaid,
Her careleſs but afflicted Maid;
Put me to Bed then, wretched JANE:
Alas! when ſhall I riſe again?
I can behold no Mortal now:
For what's an Eye without a Brow?
